Are you a facilitator, instructor, tutor, or community worker looking to grow your skills and better support adult learners and families?

Join our interactive, expert-led training to gain tools for creating engaging and effective learning environments.

Literacy and Parenting Skills

Indigenous and General Approaches

Our Indigenous and general Literacy and Parenting Skills programs help parents build literacy, learning, and parenting skills while supporting their children's literacy. Facilitators gain strategies, cultural facilitation techniques, and adaptable resources to support their communities, equipping them with practical tools to assist parents and caregivers.

Indigenous Workplace Learning Circles

Indigenous Workplace Learning Circles (IWLC) helps foundational learners, people new to the workplace, people who may be struggling at work and people returning to work. The program builds on participant's strengths and incorporates traditional culture and language with employment readiness training to build their confidence and literacy skills. Some of the topics covered in the training include:

- Embedding Skills for Success into everyday activities tailored to learners' literacy and readiness levels
- Literacy instructional techniques and cultural facilitation strategies
- Customizing the IWLC program to suit your community, organization, or company

New Beginnings

Indigenous and General Approaches

New Beginnings is an innovative parenting-after-violence literacy program designed to support families impacted by domestic violence and abuse.

Training participants will explore the impact of violence on families, strategies to strengthen literacy and parenting skills, cultural facilitation techniques, and ways to help families move forward. They will also learn how to integrate the New Beginnings program into their agency's services.
